Teaching in Private International Schools

Every year thousands of teachers make the choice to work in private, international English-speaking schools around the world. Many are motivated by the ability to combine their twin passions of teaching and travelling. Others are motivated by professional development and the ability to learn and teach another curriculum, learn a new language or take on a position of responsibility and most wish to see another culture in a deeper way than a casual traveller might. Benefits such as tax-free salaries, bonuses, free housing and free flights are other reasons teachers consider working abroad. Whatever your reasons, Teachanywhere.com should be your first stop to land your dream job.

Moving to another country and job is a large undertaking, so why not find out why hundreds of teachers say every year, "I could not have done it without Teachanywhere.com!". Best of all, our personalised services and knowledge based on years of experience are always free to teachers.

- Personalised service from International Education specialists
- Access to hundreds of positions with one easy registration
- Information about teacher certification, visa and travel requirements worldwide
- Interview tips, school information, and advice to give you an extra advantage

"I have to commend you and your company on your professionalism and your attention to detail, not to mention your caring personal touch in the way you do things. It is so refreshing to deal with people who have such a disposition towards teachers, not to see us merely as a means to an end."

- Gerard, English teacher placed in Dubai
